THOUGHTS.

They come when the sunset
Is bright on the mountain;
They come when the moonlight
Is clear on the fountain.
At noon and at even,
By minutes and hours,
They come from the forest,
From birds and from flowers.

They come when some token
Of events past will arise
As a link to the present
And then they bring sighs;
They come when some vision
Of hope and of fears,
Rushes on to the future
And then they bring tears.

They come when the sea mist
O'er ocean is rife,
And tell of the shadows
That hang o'er our life;
They come when the tempest
Its thunder and gloom
Spread around, and they speak
Of the earth and the tomb.

They come when the ripple
Is low on the lake,
And the plover is nestling
By fountain and brake;
And the twilight looks out
With gems on its breast,
And they whisper that all
Save themselves are at rest.

They come when the light wind
Is fanning the leaves,
They come when the flower-cup
The dew-drop receives.
By night's noontide silence,
By day's noontide hum,
At all times, oh, deeply
And darkly they come. J. H——s.

THE FLOWER GIRL of FLORENCE

"Adieu, paniers, vendages sont faites," is the pretty mournful refrain of a Provincial song. It might be sung now in the City of Flowers, which has new streets and squares, and public promenades and fountains, and banks and shops, but alas! there are no more flower-girls! In the Cascine and cafes now rarely, if ever, seen those dainty figures, so jauntily dressed, all possessed of the beauty of youth, and some rejoicing in a loveliness of a nobler and rarer type, carrying basket-fulls of the choicest flowers which they used to proffer with the artless yet graceful courtesy of their country to passers-by. At the end of the season a sum of money was given for these flowers, so that all the ugly part of the transaction, the buying and selling, was hidden from view. The bouquets were given and received with smiles, and cordial words and merry farewells "until to-morrow" were exchanged and that was all.

About ten years ago one of these flower-girls was a great favorite, and especially admired by the foreigners, English, American, and German, who stopped to hear the band in Piazzone Cascine.

"Oh, auntie, look! what a pretty girl!" said Maud Halifax, herself a very girl, to the lady who was with her. They had stopped to hear the music on one warm April afternoon. Maud had been leaning back, tired and exhausted for she was in very bad health when this lovely vision of a girl of her own age stood beside the carriage and roused her.

"She is very pretty," said Miss Halifax; "but, what is very strange, she is very much like you."

"Oh, aunt! how you flatter:"

It was the fact, however; the English young lady and the Italian girl were as like as sisters. Both had dark eyes, slightly aquiline noses, broad, low foreheads, and beautiful mouths; but the Italian was as blooming as her own flowers. Maud was thin, pale, and languid.

"Do you think I am right?" said Miss Halifax, in French, to a young Hungarian officer who now came up.

He assented hastily, but not before both the faces he had glanced at blushed to the roots of the hair, worn by both in the same way, drawn back in simple waves from the forehead.

The flower-girl hastily threw some roses into the carriage and vanished.

"I am tired; let me go home," said Maud.

"Shall we see you this evening?" said Miss Halifax to the officer.

"I do not know. Yes, yes; I will come."

The Halifaxes went home.

The young officer followed the flower-girl. She held out her basket to him.

"I told you," said he, with an air of authority, "that you were never to go near that carriage."

"Why?"

"Never mind; I have my reasons, Drodata."

"Shall I never know them?"

"No, perhaps not."

He turned on his heel, and was gone. The girl looked after him thoughtfully.

"I wish I knew," she murmured.

"What do you wish to know?" said a young Italian artist who came up—"I can tell you a great many things. Count Lindau, for instance, that young man who has just been buying your flowers, is engaged to be married to the rich English girl at the Hotel de la Ville, who is so ill. If she lives to be married he will be a rich man; for it is said her father has settled fifty thousand francs a year on her husband. What is the matter, Drodata?"

"I must go home." The poor girl's very lips were white.

"Come, I will take you," he said; for he saw she was trembling too much to be able to walk.

They stepped aside from the busy crowd. The music was pouring forth its sweet peals of gay melody, the sky was bright, and the flowers Drodata carried seemed laughing up in selfish mockery in her face; but she thought of nothing, heard nothing, but the dreadful words Carlo Malaspina had spoken: "Count Lindau is going to be married."

Why, then, had he for the last six months told her he loved her, and loved her only? Why had he said that he was a German, for that, as soon as she had married him, he would take her from Florence; and at Prague no one would look down upon her for they would not know whether she had been a flower-girl or a countess? Why? why? Alas! there was no reply. Carlo was well known to her.—He had always been most kind to her mother and herself. She called it kindness; but, in truth, it was sincere and devoted love which he felt for her. But there is often this terrible disparity and unequality in love—on one side fire, and on the other frost. The one loves and the other is loved; and between the active and passive of that verb what a world of difference!

Drodata had no father. She had heard he had died when she was an infant at Venice; and Ida Benelli, her mother, had come to Florence, poor and heart-broken, to learn how to support herself and her child. No one knew more than that fact about the pale, beautiful woman. She was alone with her child, and worked hard at her needle to support both. She was, however, evidently of gentle birth, though she never alluded to the past; and was as simple and unpretending as if she had always lived by the labor of her own hands. But evidently there had been a great sorrow in her life, and it was one she never got over. She was always sad, and somewhat stern.

They lived on the ground-floor of a little villa near Florence, and the flowers they cultivated were sold by Drodata. Sometimes her mother accompanied her; sometimes one of the older flower-girls took charge of Drodata.

Count Lindau had been staying at a neighboring villa, and it was during his walks he had met Drodata. He used to go sometimes to see the lady at whose villa he was staying, and, after a few meetings, he told her he loved her. Drodata brought him to her mother, and Ida Benelli gave her consent to their marriage. She told him there was no disparity in birth between them, and that the secret of her life should be made known to him on the day of the marriage; till then she wished the engagement to be secret. Not even Carlo Malaspina, who he was so good a friend, knew of it.

Now, as he took poor Drodata home he first became aware of it. It was fortunate for Lindau that Carlo could not leave the poor girl, or the Cascine of Florence would have been disturbed by a summary act of vengeance.—When they arrived at the villa poor Drodata dragged herself up to her room.

"Tell mamma," she said, as the tears streamed down her face.

Ida Benelli listened with set lips and kindling eyes. "He shall not marry this English girl," she said; "her father shall know what a traitor he is."

She went up stairs, kissed the poor, tear-stained cheek of her girl, and went down again. "Come with me Carlo," she said.

Mr. Halifax was at dinner when he was told he was wanted.

"Who is it?"

"A lady. She says she will wait."

"Who is in the drawing room?"

"Maud is there," said Miss Halifax "She said she would have some tea there instead of dining with us."

When Mr. Halifax had finished he went to the drawing-room. The lights had not been lit.

He heard his daughter's voice conversing with some one; and as his eyes became accustomed to the gloom he saw a tall, slight form leaning over the couch where she lay.

"I hear you wanted me," he said, politely. "How can I serve you madame?"

At that moment the waiter came in, and the light fell on Ida's face.

"Good Heavens!" said Mr. Halifax. "Ida! Have the waves given up the dead?"

"Is it you—you—you?" as the poor woman fell at his feet.

"What is the matter, papa?" said Maud, sobbing. There was a good deal of confusion at first, but finally Ida was restored to her senses, and then Mr. Halifax explained, and Ida explained.

He had married Ida Contarina at Venice twenty years before. A year after their marriage, just before the birth of her child, Ida's confessor so filled her with fears for her own soul and that of her child about to be born that the poor woman almost lost her senses. She determined to fly, and leave no trace by which she could be recalled. She threw her veil and mantle out of her gondola, and disguised in an ecclesiastical costume left Venice. There was a rumor that she had committed suicide. This was industriously circulated by the priest; and poor Mr. Halifax left Venice, miserable and convinced that he was a widower. Two years afterward, to please his sister, he married a young English girl, who died in giving birth to Maud. He thought there was a curse upon him, that all he loved should thus be taken. He consigned Maud to his sister, and spent years in traveling in Egypt, India, China, Greece, Syria—everywhere but Italy, until he had been summoned home on account of Maud's health. On growing up Maud had shown signs of great delicacy. For the last two years—she was now seventeen (Drodata was 19, but, from her health and bloom, looked as young, if not younger, than her sister)—she had been in Italy. She had regained a little strength at Florence, had gone out a little into society, and had met Count Lindau. It was well known that she was a rich heiress; he had proposed, and been accepted.

Mr. Halifax, from the moment he had returned to Italy, had become more melancholy and gloomy than ever; he seemed haunted by bitter and undying memories. He felt that his daughter also would be taken from him, and shuddered as he looked at her. It was a sad home, and Maud had been naturally pleased at the cheerful, genial manners of the young Hungarian, and looked upon her marriage as an escape from the overdeepening gloom of her home. But, once the marriage was settled, Lindau became cold and somewhat inattentive. The quick instincts of womanhood told Maud that she was not loved; she had heard whispers of Lindau's admiration for some beautiful flower-girl.—When she saw Drodata she had an intuitive knowledge that it was she.

She was thinking of these things that night when the waiter ushered in a lady. Ida had come up to her, and had also been struck apparently by Maud's likeness to Drodata.

In her beautiful, pathetic voice Ida had told Maud the purpose of her visit.

"I have come to you to save you from a mercenary man, as I would wish any one to come to save my child, had she been thus betrayed and deceived. He must love you, as he has lost her." It was at this point of the conversation that Mr. Halifax had entered.

Need I describe the happiness, tardy as it was, of these two re-united hearts? Need I dwell upon the warmth with which the two sisters accepted their new relationship? Need I say that Lindau was dismissed?

About a month afterward a carriage on the Cascine was the centre of attraction to all present. In it was Mr. Halifax, and by his side was a lady of faded but exquisite beauty. Opposite were two girls, so alike that but the paler complexion and slighter form, they could scarcely have been known apart. They were Mr. Halifax's two daughters.

"Was not Count Lindau to have married the pale one once?" asked a young Italian of his friend.

"Yes; and he was in love with both, I believe; but he has left Florence now. At present I should say the only man who has a chance with them is Carlo Malaspina."

"But Malaspina was in love, I tho't with the beautiful Drodata, who was as good as she was beautiful."

"That beautiful Drodata is the eldest Miss Halifax. There was some family quarrel, and Mrs. Halifax lived away from her husband 19 years. He thought she was dead, and married again. He only knew the truth a month ago."

"What a romance?"

"Yes; and who could be a prettier heroine than our pretty flower-girl?"

THE CONJUGATING DUTCHMAN.—We know not where the following story came from, but as it gives a droll picture of a methodical and persevering Dutchman, it may not prove unentertaining. Two English gentlemen stepped into a coffee-house in Paris, where they observed a tall, old-looking man, who appeared to be a native, sitting at one of the tables, and looking around with the greatest stone like gravity of countenance upon every object. Soon after the two Englishmen entered, one of them told the other that a celebrated dwarf had arrived in Paris. At this the grave looking personage above mentioned opened his mouth and spake:

"I arrive," said he, 'thou arrivest, he arrives, we arrive, you arrive, they arrive.

The Englishman, whose remark seemed to have suggested this mysterious speech, stepped up to the stranger and asked—

"Did you speak to me, sir?"

"I speak," replied the stranger, "thou speakest, he speaks, we speak, you speak, they speak."

"How is this," said the Englishman "do you mean to insult me?"

"The other replied," "I insult, thou insultest, he insults, we insult, you insult, they insult."

"This is too much," said the Englishman; "I will have satisfaction; if you have any spirit with your rudeness, come along with me."

To this defiance the imperturbable stranger replied—

"I come, thou comest, he comes, we come, you come, they come;" and thereupon he arose with great coolness, and followed his challenger. In those days, when every gentleman wore a sword, duels were speedily dispatched. They went into a neighboring alley, and the Englishman, unsheathing his weapon, said to his antagonist—

"Now, sir, you must fight me."

"I fight," replied the other, drawing his sword, "thou fightest, he fights, we fight"—and here he disarmed his adversary.

☞ A father, who has passed innumerable sleepless nights, has immortalized himself by discovering a method of keeping babies quiet. The modus operandi is as follows: As soon as "pet" awakes, sit it up propped by a pillow if it cannot sit alone, and smear its finger with molasses; then put half a dozen feathers into its hands, and it will sit and pick the feathers from one hand to the other until it drops asleep. As soon as it wakes again, repeat the operation; and in place of the fret and worry of former nights, there will be silence and quiet repose.

☞ The Freeburg Courier reports the destruction by fire of the tavern stand known as Lyon's Hotel, at Shamonkin dam.

STEEL MADE BY LIGHTNING.—The York True Democrat says: Some months ago Dr. Charles Nes, of this borough, called to visit a poor old lady, four or five miles in the country, who stood in need of a physician. The day was a dark and gloomy one, the rain falling in torrents, and the sky at times disturbed by fierce flashes of lightning and loud bursts of thunder. The doctor knew that he would get nothing for his visit and services, yet prompted by that spirit of benevolence for which he is characterized, he nevertheless started out in the storm to look after this patient. When he arrived at the house he found that the lightning had struck into a corner of it and had melted up a gun barrel which had been left standing there. The house was uninjured. A careful inspection of solved metal suggested a thought, and that in return begat another, until the final result was the discovery of the manufacture of steel by means of electricity, for which the doctor now holds letters patent from the government of the United States, and which, we are satisfied, will be among the most important discoveries of the age.

The storm, the sick lady, her impoverished condition, the doctor's well known kindness of heart, the old gun barrel and lightning stroke that led to it, and it'it had not been for this singular coincidence of things the discovery might never have been made. Dr. Nes never received pay from the old lady for his visit or services, nor would he have received it, probably, under the circumstances, had it been tendered, but he now holds in his hands letters patent for an invention suggested by the circumstances of that visit, which may realize for him millions of dollars. "Cast thy bread upon the waters and thou shalt find it after many days."

CONFIRMED IN HER HABITS.—A gentleman of excellent habits, and very amiable disposition, was so unfortunate as to have a wife of a very different character; in short, one that would get beastly drunk. Being in company with a few inmates, one of them remarked to him, that if she was his wife—since all other things had failed he would frighten her some way so that she would quit her evil habits; and proposed the following method: that sometime when drunk, she should be laid in a box shaped like a coffin, and be left in that situation until her fit would be over and consciousness restored.

A few evenings after, the dame being in proper state, the plan was put into execution; and after the box lid was properly secured, the party before alluded to watched, each in turn, to witness the result. About daylight next morning, the watch heard a movement, laid himself down by the box, when her lady ship, after bumping her head a few times, was heard to say; "Bless me! why where am I?" "The outside replied, in a sepulchal tone: 'Madame, you are dead and in another world.

A pause ensued, after which the lady again inquired:

"Where are you?"

"Oh, I am dead, too," said he.

"Can you tell me how long I've been dead?"

"About three weeks."

"How long have you been dead?"

"Four months."

"Well, you have been here so much longer than I have, can't you tell me where I can get a little gin?"

ROBINS.—It is generally supposed that the robins emigrate to the south during the winter months. From the following account it would appear that such is not always the case: Two gentlemen crossing the Sandwich Mountains in New Hampshire discovered a deep valley, and approaching it found it clothed with hemlock, spruce, fir and tamarack, growing so close together that it was with difficulty they made headway between them. Before they came to this growth the snow was over a foot in depth; after entering it was only six inches, the residue lying on the tops of the trees, making quite a roof, and excluding much of the light of day. After making their way a few rods, they were surprised to find the place an extensive robin "roost," occupied by thousands, and so thickly were they congregated that they might have killed numbers with their walking-sticks in crossing the premises from south to north—about thirty rods.

☞ A Philadelphia editor carries the editorial "we" so far as to say "our gracious," for "my gracious." The above brings to mind an incident which happened a short time since respecting a pretty girl of eight summers, who, although not editorially connected, showed a marked preference for the plural. Her father was a partner in the firm of Young & Parker, which collocation had become so familiar, that on being asked in Sunday School "whose little girl are you?" she promptly responded, "Young & Parker's."

☞ A Washington dispatch says that there is a quiet though energetic movement going on here looking to the organization of influential persons into a party which shall insist upon an amendment to the Constitution, recognizing the Christian religion and Jesus Christ as the source of law and government. It was discovered upon an interchange of views, that there is a division of sentiment among the members of this embryo organization. Some of them only desire the amendment to recognize religious obligation and God as the author and source of law and government. This will probably prevail, and the claim that the Christian religion be recognized will be abandoned. Thus, it is urged, all persons who acknowledge the existence of the Divine Being, of whatever sect or religious denomination, can co-operate to secure the adoption of the new amendment to the Constitution. The new party claims to have in its organization a number of Congressmen, two of the Supreme Judges and other high officials.

Editorial Brevities.

THE City of Boston steamship, supposed to be wrecked, has not yet been heard from.

IT is said the Avondale mines are now haunted by the spirits of the miners who died there. Nonsense.

NEARLY the whole of Thursday afternoon was spent by the Senate in the discussion, in Executive session, of the San Domingo treaty. Mr. Sumner spoke for four hours and ten minutes against its ratification.

THE Senate on Monday last confirmed the appointment of Judge Bradley, as U. S. Circuit Judge of the Supreme Court for the district embracing Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, etc. He took his seat on Wednesday.

COMMODORE WINSLOW, of Kearsarge fame, has been promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral in the United States Navy. The gallant sailor who sent the Alabama to the bottom, richly deserves this distinction and honor.

Although the young Democracy of Philadelphia are putting in a bid for a negro vote, neither the young or old Democratic leaders of this county are likely to follow suit, as it might choke off more than a few of the "faithful," who "can't bear a nigger, nohow."

A MAGIC fluid for erasing ink marks is being sold in Chicago. In consequence, the bankers generally are very cautious in receiving and cashing checks that may possibly have been altered in the amounts by the use of that fluid, and are instructing their customers that blue ink is not effected by the fluid.

OUR Generals are too well paid, as the following will show: General W. T. Sherman $18,800, Lieutenant General Sheridan $14,803, and Major Gen. Halleck $8,962. We are glad to see a bill has passed the House to reduce these respective sums, as follows:—$12,000, $10,000, and $7,500. It will save $1,500,000 annually in pay of officers alone.

THE Philadelphia Democrats are split upon the negro question. The old lights of the party are opposed to recognizing the rights of the negro, while the new and younger lights are earnestly endeavoring to bring him prominently before the people, so as to get his vote and use his support.—It is thought those who are still in favor of "a white man's government" will stand a poor chance for future position and renown.

A GOOD anecdote is told of Mr. Revels, the new Senator from Mississippi, who lately sat by and heard himself and wife assailed by the Democrats in the Senate before he was admitted to his seat. A Republican Senator asked him if he was disturbed by the course of the leaders of the white man's party. "Oh, no, said Mr. Revels, "I like it very much. It will show the colored people of America who are their friends."

JUDGE PAXTON, of Philadelphia, in sentencing an aged man for aggravated perjury, last week, stated that the recent act of Assembly enabling a party to a suit to testify in his own case had produced a frightful increase of perjury. This is hard, for while an innocent man would thereby have a chance to clear himself, the guilty ones who perjure themselves will bring odium upon the law, and it will not be long before it will be repealed, and mercy will have to give way to justice.

AN astounding development was produced last week before the committee trying the contested election of Diamond versus Watt, from the First Senatorial District. Twenty six New York repeaters were bought at $25 per head, to come to Philadelphia and vote. Lawrence Ball, a young man, testified that he voted eleven times for Diamond, and three times at one poll back of the Continental Hotel.—Another of the gang said that he voted seven times. Over two hundred fraudulent votes were thus cast for a Democrat by twenty-six New York repeaters. Oh, Democracy, where is thy blush!

COMMERCE ON THE DECLINE.—President Grant, on the 23d inst., sent to Congress a message in relation to the American commerce. He states:

It is a national humiliation that we are now compelled to pay from twenty or thirty millions of dollars annually, exclusive of passage money, which we should share with the vessels of other nations, to foreigners for doing the work which should be done by American-owned and American manned vessels. This is a direct drain upon the resources of the country of just so much money, equal to casting it into the sea, so far as this nation is concerned.

On the 22d inst., a boiler of the coal breaker of the Wolf Creek Diamond Coal Company, near Pottsville, Pa., exploded. The building was demolished, and the boiler carried over one hundred yards. Three boys were killed, and ten persons injured by bruises or scalds. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Legislative Summary.

Both Houses have passed a joint resolution for an adjournment, sine die, on the 7th of April next.

The House bill for the punishment of gambling has been favorably reported in the Senate.

The House bill increasing the number of Supreme Court Judges to seven was amended to increase to but six, and passed in the Senate.

The Governor has not yet signed the Wild-Cat Railroad Swindle by which the State is to cancel nine and a half millions of first mortgage bonds against the Pennsylvania Central, and Alleghany Valley Railroad, and accept in their place bonds of inferior value that may prove worthless. It is to be hoped that he will veto it.

The House passed a bill making it unlawful to sell territoral, personal or shop patent rights without a license from the Treasurer of the county.—The fine for violation is not to exceed $500.

GOOD NEWS FOR HUNTINGDON.—The House has passed the following bill in relation to abandonment of canals:

The bill authorizing turnpike, plank road and canal companies to issue bonds and secure the same by mortgage and abandon portions of roads and lines for public use, came up. Mr. Miller, of Philadelphia, moved an amendment prohibiting the abandonment of the North Branch canal, north of Wilkesbarre, or Pennsylvania canal on the Juniata river, east of Huntingdon, and authorizing said company to substitute slack-water navigation and applying the act only to canals operated by the Pennsylvania Railroad or Canal Company. Adopted.

UNJUST.—Poor Huntingdon has received an unjust verdict from the pens of some city and country scribblers, in consequence of the scenes and incidents they witnessed or heard of on the day of the execution; and in reading some of the articles the reader might infer that Huntingdon was a perfect Pandemonium, where fiends and demons incarnate held high carnival. Now, this is simply not so.—True, there were some things done outside of the execution, that should not have been done, but no execution, itself considered, was more orderly, more properly, or more satisfactorily conducted than was that in this place. The disorders and improprieties occurred after the execution, and although the drunkenness on our streets might be attributed to a portion of Huntingdon "fire-water," yet those drunken individuals who created the disturbance were principally from other places. This is shown in the fact that the only disturbances that did occur were at the station. Therefore, those country papers which accused Huntingdon of having such characters, might have been showing up some of their own.

☞We are indebted to De Haven & Brother, Philadelphia, for a copy of the Omaha Herald, of March 17, from which we extract the following:—

The Union Pacific Railroad has won a lasting triumph in having operated a thousand miles of line during the unprecedented storm of the last three days, without suffering serious obstruction from snow on any part of it. This is the crowning victory of the continental railway as a winter line, and not only dispels, finally and forever, the popular error concerning the mountain snow fall, but settles the case of malignant rivals and enemies who have claimed for years that it could not be operated in winter. It was a writer in the Edinburg Review who based his main arguments in favor of a rival English line from Vancouver through Rupert's Land to Hudson's Bay upon the broad assertion that the Union Pacific could not be operated in winter. It is not a year since Horace Greeley argued for gigantic subsidies to the Fremont project upon the same ground, while all the small fry croakers of high and low degree, have made the country ring again with unanswerable clamor to the same effect.

The experience of a single winter has settled the great question triumphantly for the great road. The late storm, following upon several others of singular severity, put it to a final test, and it comes out of it on the closing day of the most violent, long continued and drifting storm which this country ever known, with a clear track from Omaha to Ogden. In no case has a single train been blocked by snow. Some of them have lost time, but all trains have been kept moving, and no such thing as a blockade has occurred on any part of this thousand miles of line. Such a victory over falsehood and clamor, and indeed over all other roads in the latitude, is a glorious and crowning one to the Union Pacific, and gives abundant cause for congratulating the management and the Company upon results which are worth millions of dollars to the road and the country it traverses.

While every connecting Eastern road is buried in snow and blockaded, the mails from the East being at this writing three days behind time, those from the West arrive with uninterrupted regularity from as far west as California.

It would be unjust not to mention in this connection, the forecast, energy and skill with which the Union Pacific has been protected against snow obstructions at its most vulnerable points, and too much credit cannot be awarded to Col. Hammond, Mr. Mead, and the management generally, upon results which prove the Union Pacific the best winter route in the same latitude in the United States.

The Columbus, Ga., Sun says: "We are told of a young grocery clerk, who loved fondly but not wisely, for the father was bitterly opposed to the match. The young lady returned the attachment. The father was a patron of the store. The lovers arranged a system of correspondence, and the gentleman wrote his love messages on the eggs which the daddy of the betrothed bought."

Murder Will Out.

Discovery of the Murderer of Little Mary Mohrmann.

Nearly all of our readers will recollect the great excitement that prevailed in Philadelphia in September, 1868, when a little girl named Mary Mohrmann was found on a lot at Sixth and Susquehanna avenue, most brutally outraged and murdered, and also the supposed ineffectual attempts to discover the fiend who committed the deed. All, we presume, will rejoice to learn that this man has at last been found through the untiring energy of a few faithful men who have worked day and night at the case to accomplish their object. As time has perhaps effaced the recollection of many of the important features of the murder, we will give a resume of the whole affair. On Saturday evening, September 6, 1868, before dusk, Mary Mohrmann a little girl, aged about 6 years, was out playing on the pavement at Sixth and Diamond streets, near the residence of her parents, when she suddenly disappeared, and, notwithstanding the most vigilant search no trace of her was obtained until the morning of Tuesday following, when her dead body was found in a puddle of water on a lot at Sixth and Susquehanna avenue. An examination proved that she had first been brutally outraged and then murdered. Mr. Lamon, who was at that time, under Mayor M'Michael, the chief of detectives, detailed detectives Joshua Tagart, George H. Smith and Edward K. Tryon to work up the case, and they labored at it diligently, taking up their residences near the vicinity, and assuming all manner of disguises and using every effort to discover the perpetrator of the murder. Evidence enough was accumulated to strongly justify the belief that they had the right man in view, but still there was not enough to warrant the officers in arresting the man, whose name is John Hanlon, and who then kept a barber shop on Fifth street, below Diamond.

Albert Heins, of the Nineteenth ward, took a very strong interest in the case, and was of valuable assistance to the detectives. After Detectives Smith and Taggart ceased to be in the employ of the city, and established their own Agency, at No. 628 Walnut street, they still took an active part in the case, in conjunction with Detective Tryon, and all of them kept a close watch upon Hanlon.

On a morning in the beginning of December, 1869, Hanlon, who had removed from his former residence, and assumed the name of Charles Harris, accosted a little girl, aged 10 years, residing on Eleventh street, above Oxford, and after conversing with her for some time, induced her to go into the yard of a church on Eleventh street, below Oxford, under pretence of listening to the music of the organ. Finally, he persuaded her into the water closet, in the rear of the church, and attempted to commit an outrage upon her person. The child gave several screams, when the villain took a woolen glove, which he thrust into her mouth, thus effectually stifling her cries. A number of half-grown boys, overhearing the struggle, went to the door, heard her struggling on the floor, as she resisted the atrocious scoundrel, and wondering what was the matter, they tried to open the door, but Harris, or Hanlon, had fastened it on the inside. Some of them climbed upon the roof, and taking a stout club, inserted it into the half moon in the top of the door, and thus pried it open, when Harris ran away. He was afterwards arrested, however, and tried in the court of quarter sessions, convicted and sentenced to the county prison for the term of five years for attempting to commit rape. What would have been the result, had not the boys fortunately heard the noise, can hardly be imagined, but the probability is that the unfortunate girl would have been strangled and thrown in the cesspool. This case seemed to corroborate the evidence already obtained with this felon's connection with the murder of Mary Mohrmann, and it is probable that it was thus the final clue was obtained to the complete chain of evidence which connects Hanlon with it.

THE BRUTE MAKES A CONFESSION.

During Hanlon's confinement in prison he had placed in the cell with him another prisoner (?) to whom he made a confession, which has been reduced to writing, of which the following is the substance:

Hanlon, says the gentleman, stated, in commencing his confession, that he enticed Mary into the yard, then detailed how he choked her, and how he placed the body in the cellar and removed it

He said he pushed the body out through the window, and after looking around to see if any one was about, wrapped it in a piece of carpet and stole silently out of the alley and walked sharply to the lot at Sixth and Diamond streets, to a spot he had previously chosen, and laid the body in a pond of water, so that in case it should be found it would appear that she had been drowned. After taking a survey of the surroundings, he walked up to Susquehanna avenue, and thence to Sixth street, down the latter highway to Diamond, and passed thence into the yard of his house. Thinking that he had covered up every track that would likely lead to his being suspected, he went to bed. This was between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. Finding that he could not sleep, he got up and dressed himself. The greater part of that day he wandered about the city, thinking as to what course he had better pursue to avoid detection. The first intimation he had that he was suspected was when a couple of gentlemen entered his shop and quizzed him about the murder. He left home the next day, and remained away for some time. Hearing no more of the case he returned, thinking that he was perfectly safe, and that no further action would be taken by the authorities.

A well-known citizen of North Adams, Mass., has been cured of a lameness of several years' standing, by carrying a potatoe in each pocket. He suffered terribly the first night after trying the prescription, but his pains and aches all left him and haven't returned during the subsequent six months. Anybody who don't believe this may go to North Adams and see the potatoes for himself.

Sunday shaving is pronounced to be illegal. Shavers, take notice.

The coffin-makers of this place have been busy for some weeks past.

A number of dwellings are to be erected this spring in the old and new boroughs.

Col. Wm. H. Irwin, formerly of Lewistown, died at Cleveland, Ohio, recently.

1st of April changes will be numerous in Huntingdon, in the way of new stores and flittings.

The Lewistown Gazette says it daily witnesses instances of cruelty to animals on its streets. That's too bad.

Mrs. Mary Ann Coleman, aged about 42 years, expired in a law office in Lancaster while asking professional advice.

In the vote on the local temperance bill in the House, Mr. Rorer voted for and Mr. McAteer against it.

According to a recent estimate the population of the globe is 1,228,000,000 souls.—The annual mortality is over 33,000,000.

Rev. R. E. Wilson, formerly pastor of the M. E. Church of this place, has been assigned a charge at Philipsburg, Centre Co.

The school children in Centre county are troubled with a strange disease of the eye, which is reducing the attendance. Poor pupils.

The announcement is made that the M. E. church at Bellefonte is out of debt—just as if it was possible for a church to be out of debt.

Rev. J. W. Plannett, pastor of the Baptist church in this place, was the happy recipient of a clothing and provision donation the other week.

The National Hall, in this place, which was destroyed by fire recently, we understand, is to be rebuilt by the Germania Insurance Company.

One firm in Lewistown has paid out about $80,000 for bark alone, inside of a year. That comes from having manufacturing establishments.

Subscribers changing their place of residence will inform us of the place from which they have gone as well as the place to which they have gone.

A colored man named Philip Franklin died in this place last week. Rumor has it that he refused to take medicine or eat any food, preferring to die.

The Tyrone Herald says our "limbs of the law" would starve if they would go there.—There is not much danger of many of them going there, if that is the case.

The immense slide of earth at Cypher's Cut, on the Broad Top Railroad, which occurred recently, has been removed and the trains pass as usual.

Father Gallagher, who for some years has been in charge of the Catholic church of this place, has left for Wilmore, Cambria county, and is succeeded by Father Hays.

The man who drives enterprise away from his town, by asking exorbitant rates, generally has cause to regret it afterwards. We have some such in our mind's eye.

The Conference of ministers of the M. E. Church which met at Lewistown last week voted on the question of lay delegation, as follows: Ayes, 79, nays, 67.

Clothes-line thieves operate in Philipsburg and Altoona. They should think before they steal that a clothes-line bears a strong resemblance to a hangman's rope.

Ours is the only office in Huntingdon that has four printing presses. Those wanting job-printing done neatly and expeditiously, and at low rates, should give us a call. Hem!

A coffee-pot sign in front of Buchanan's tin store, is the only improvement we noticed that went up on Hill street, last week. The only amusements open to the public were a couple of auctions.

The office of County Superintendent must be considered a very insignificant position, as at a recent meeting of our School Directors they increased his salary only 50 cents. He now gets $800.50.

Our citizens who were horrified over a year ago in reading the outrageous murder of little Mary Mohrmann, in Philadelphia, will be glad to know that the murderer is now in the Penitentiary awaiting his trial.

Sad. At Irwin Station on the Pennsylvania railroad, a man named Alex. Rowen was killed on the night of the 11th inst., by being run over by the "fast line." His father was killed five years ago at the same place and by the same train.

We are informed that if homes could be provided there would be about twenty families that would move to Huntingdon. And this is the case every spring. Does not this show the necessity of a Building Association or at least the importance of our capitalists erecting buildings?

Foolish Sport.

We learn that one day last week a number of small boys in this place, whose ages average about six years, took it into their heads to play hanging and forthwith they erected a gallows in a back yard with the prop, rope and all the necessary fixtures.—On the completion of the scaffold, one little fellow, whose name we forbear to publish, volunteered to be the culprit. The boys then took him to the gallows, placed the rope around his neck, and let him drop a distance of about six inches or more, when fortunately the rope broke, and the little fellow escaped. The shock he received, however, was sufficient to make a blue mark around his neck, where the rope was attached.

This shows what effect the recent hanging in our town has had in deterring even our boys from meeting a murderers doom. The boys no doubt, tho't it "fun," and never thought of the risk they run in ending the career of one of their play mates, as would have undoubtedly been the case had not the rope broken. It shows also the duty of parents in permitting their children to read of crimes or witness executions, as such impressions have lasting effects upon their tender memories, and with youthful curiosity they may be tempted to try the same thing, just as many of them would pry open a watch to see where the tick comes from. Parents should therefore be very careful what they allow their children to read or listen to, or even witness themselves.

MINNIE BELL, the little foundling, left us the residence of Dr E. J. Greeno of this place, on the evening of January 15th, 1870, and died on March 7, 1870, had won quite a warm place in their affections, and from the first intimation of illness had the faithful attention of the family physician—A. B. Brumbaugh, M. D.; yet like many others of the little ones in this vicinity, fell a victim to an attack of whooping cough, accompanied with pneumonia, and thus in God's Providence, the little homeless one was called to a real home with Him, who long since declared, "Of such is the kingdom of Heaven;" where with it, since its being called, has gone, MINNIE KINSLEY, only child of Dr. E. J and Nannie Greeno. R. E. WILSON,
Pastor M. E. Church, Huntingdon, Pa

DISTRESSING CASE.—Mr Caleb Wakefield, an industrious farmer, residing at Airy Dale, this county, on Friday last, lost a pocket-book, containing $360, a bill of Wm. Huey's, a circular letter of Boyer & Bro., of Philadelphia and some other papers. He thinks he lost the pocket book, either in Huntingdon, or somewhere on the road between his place in Airy Dale and Huntingdon. He was in town on the 25th and sold some apples, receiving the money therefor, but the first intimation that he had of his loss was when he got home, and while searching his pockets he found his pocket-book was gone. He offers a liberal reward to any person who may find it. It may be returned to this office or to him at Airy Dale.

KISHACOQUILLAS SEMINARY.—This institution is rapidly rising into popular favor, and will, before long, be among the first institutions of the State. Prof Mohler, the principal, has secured more land adjoining the Seminary grounds, north and east, and proposes to commence the erection of another building the coming Summer, which will be completed early next Spring. This building will contain a lecture hall, 36x60 feet, and rooms for the accommodation of about 40 students.—Also a large library room and an art room. About five acres of land adjoining the Seminary will be divided into building lots and offered for sale.

BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE.—The Phrenological Journal and Packard's Monthly consolidated! See the April number of our old favorite for reading the most instructive and agreeable to minds young and old From its rich contents we select the following: Thos. H. Selby, Mayor of San Francisco, with Portrait; Mental Requisites of the Artist; Philosophy of Faith; Henry Bergh, the philanthropist, with portrait; The Double Adoption—a domestic sketch; Life in China, with illustrations; The Dust in the Air; The Art of Engraving; Nathan. C. Ely, Pres. Farmer's Club, with portrait; Capital vs Labor; S. S. Packard, with portrait; What Makes a good Writer; The Modesty of Genius; The Swordfish, illustrated, etc. Price 30 cts., or $3 a year. S. R. Wells, Publisher, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

MILITARY.—The organization of the militia company in this place was effected at a meeting in the court house on Saturday evening last. There was a full attendance of members, and the following officers were elected: Captain, W. K. Burchinell; 1st Lieutenant, John J. Hight; 2d Lieutenant, Milton S. Lytle. The uniforms will be received as soon as possible after the descriptive roll is sent to the Department when we will be honored by the weekly parade of the "vets," as most of the members are. So be it.

☞ We are sending out bills to a number of our subscribers, which we hope they will consider as duns or notices to pay up when an opportunity offers—say at April Court. Some of the bills date too far back for either our satisfaction or the subscribers'. A large bill is much harder to pay than a small one. We want all our subscribers to pay inside of the year for which they subscribe. We are thankful to those who have paid up. tf

☞ The person who took from the smoke-house of H. C. Weaver on Sunday night last, three hams, is requested to return the same as they belonged to a neighbor, and receive in return three hams belonging to Mr. Weaver. No questions will be asked, as it is supposed the person who took the meat was in need of it.

Ladies Dresses and Boys Clothing.

Mrs. B. Annie McCabe respectfully informs the public that she has removed to the house formerly occupied by H. McManigill, on Washington street, and is prepared to make Ladies' Dresses and Boys' Clothing, of all kinds. She respectfully invites a full share of patronage. ap1

Carpet Weaving

Mrs. Matilda Pheasant is prepared to weave rag carpets, and solicits patronage from a generous public. Residence Washington Street, West Huntingdon tf

The School Directors of Brady township and also of Mt. Union are advertising for proposals for the erection of brick schoolhouses. We are glad to note this evidence of enterprise, and we hope it will not be long before every district in the county has a brick school-house, with all the necessary comforts.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

VIII.

GROWING TIMBER—TREE-PLANTING.

In my judgment, the proportion of a small farm that should be permanently devoted to trees (other than fruit) is not less than one-fourth; while of farms exceeding one hundred acres in area, that proportion should be not less than one-third, and may be often profitably increased to one-half. I am thinking of such as are in good part superficially rugged and rocky, or sandy and sterile, such as New-England, eastern New York, northern New Jersey, with both slopes of the Alleghenies, as well as the western third of our continent, abound in. It may be that it is advisable to be content with a smaller proportion of timber in the Prairie States, and the broad, fertile intervales which embosom most of our great rivers for at least a part of their course; but I doubt it. And there is scarcely a farm in the whole country, outside of the great primitive forests in which openings have but recently been made, in which some tree planting is not urgently required.

"Too much land," you will hear assigned on every side as a reason for poor farming and meagre crops. Ask an average farmer in New England, in Virginia, in Kentucky, or in Alabama, why the crops of his section are in the average no better, and the answer, three times in four, will be, "Our farmers have too much land"—that is, not too much absolutely, but too much relatively to their capital stock, and general ability to till effectively. The habitual grower of poor crops will proffer this explanation quite as freely and frequently as his more thrifty neighbor. And what every one asserts must have a basis of truth.

Now, I do not mean to quarrel with the instinct which prompts my countrymen to buy and hold too much land. They feel, as I do, that land is still cheap almost anywhere in this country—cheap, if not in view of the income now derived from it, certainly in contemplation of the price it must soon command and the income it might, under better management, be made to yield. Under this conviction—or, if you please, impression—every one is intent on holding on to more land than he can profitably till, if not more than he can promptly pay for.

What I do object to is simply this—that thousands, who have more land than they have capital to work profitably, will persist in tilling many acres, instead of thoroughly farming one-half or one-third so many, and getting the rest into wood so fast as may be. I am confident that two thirds of all our farmers would improve their circumstances and increase their incomes by concentrating their efforts, their means, their fertilizers, upon half to two-thirds of the area they now skim and skin, and giving the residue back to timber growing.

In my own hilly, rocky, often boggy Westchester—probably within six of being the oldest Agricultural County in the Union—I am confident that ten thousand acres might to-morrow be given back to forest with profit to the owners and advantage to all its inhabitants. It is a fruit-growing, milk-producing, truck-farming county, adjoining the greatest city of the New World; hence, one wherein land can be cultivated as profitably as almost anywhere else—yet I am satisfied that half its surface may be more advantageously devoted to timber than to grass or tillage. Nay: I doubt that one acre in a hundred of rocky land—that is, land ribbed or dotted with rocks that the bar or rock-hook can not lift from their beds, and which it will not as yet pay to blast—is now tilled to profit, or ever will be until it shall be found advisable to clear them utterly of stone breaking through or rising within two feet of the surface. The time will doubtless arrive in which many fields will pay for clearing of stone that would not to-day; these, I urge, should be given up to wood now and kept wooded until the hour shall have struck for ridding them of every impediment to the steady progress of both the surface and the subsoil plow.

Were all the rocky crests and rugged acclivities of this County bounteously wooded once more, and kept so for a generation, our floods would be less injurious, our springs unfailing, and our streams more constant and equalable; our blasts would be less bitter and our gales less destructive to fruit; we should have vastly more birds to delight us by their melody and aid us in our not very successful war with devouring insects; we should grow peaches, cherries, and other delicate fruits, which the violent caprices of our seasons, the remorseless devastations of our visible and invisible insect enemies, have all but annihilated; and we should keep more cows and make more milk on two-thirds of the land now devoted to grass than we actually do from the whole of it. And what is true of Westchester is measurably true of every rural county in the Union.

I have said that I believe in cutting trees as well as in growing them; I have not said, and do not mean to say, that I believe in cutting everything clean as you go. That was once proper in Westchester; it is still advisable in forest covered regions, where the sun must be let in before crops can be grown; but, in nine cases out of ten, timber should be thinned or culled out rather than cut off; and for every tree taken away, at least two should be set out or planted.

We have pretty well outgrown the folly of letting every apple tree bear such fruit as it will; though in the orchard of my father's little farm in Amherst, N. H., whereon I was born, no tree had ever been grafted when I bade adieu to it in 1820; and I presume none has been to this day. By this time, almost every farmer realizes that he can't afford to grow little, gnarly, villainously sour or detestably bitter-sweet apples, when, by duly setting a graft at the cost of two dimes, he makes that identical tree yield Greenings or Pippins at least as bounteously. I presume the cumulative experience of fifty or sixty generations of apple-growers has ripened this conclusion. Why do they not infer readily and generally that growing indifferent timber where the best and most valued would grow as rapidly, is a stupid, costly blunder? It seems to me that whoever has attained the conviction that apple-trees should be grafted ought to know that it is wasteful to grow Red Oak, Beech, White Maple, and Alder, where White Oak, Hickory, Locust and White Pine, might be grown with equal facility, in equal luxuriance, provided the right seeds were planted, and a little pains taken to keep down, for a year or two, the shoots spontaneously sent up by the wrong ones.

North of the Potomac and east of the Ohio, and, I presume, in limited districts elsewhere, rocky, sterile woodlands, costing $2 to $50 per acre, according to location, &c., are the cheapest property to be bought in the United States. Even though nothing were done with them but keep out fire and cattle and let the young trees grow as they will, money can be more profitably and safely invested in lands covered by young timber than in anything else. The parent, who would invest a few thousands for the benefit of children or grandchildren still young, may buy woodlands which will be worth twenty times their present cost within the next twenty years.—But better even than this would it be to buy up rocky, craggy, naked hill sides and eminences which have been pastured to death, and, shutting out cattle inflexibly, scratch these over with plow, mattock, hoe, or pick, as circumstances shall dictate, plant them thickly with Chesnut, Walnut, Hickory, White Oak, and the seeds of locust and White Pine. I say Locust, though not yet certain that this tree must not be started in garden or nursery beds and transplanted when two or three years old, so puny and feeble is it at the outset, and so likely to be smothered under leaves or killed out by its more favored neighbors. I have experiments in progress not yet matured, which may shed light on this point before I finish these essays.

Plant thickly, and of diverse kinds, so as to cover the ground promptly and choke out weeds and shrubs, with full purpose to thin and prune as circumstances shall dictate.

Many farmers are averse to planting timber, because, they think, nothing can be realized therefrom for the next twenty or thirty years, which is as long as they expect to live. But this is a grave miscalculation. Let us suppose a rocky, hilly pasture-lot of ten or twenty acres rudely scratched over as I have suggested, and thickly seeded with hickory nuts and white oak acorns only; within five years it will yield abundantly of hoop-poles, though the better, more promising half be left to mature, as they should be; two years later, another and larger crop of hoop poles may be cut, still sparing the best; and thenceforth a valuable crop of timber may be taken from that land; for if cut at the proper season, at least two thrifty sprouts will start from every stump; and so that wood will yield a clear income each year while its best trees are steadily growing and maturing. I do not advise restriction to these two species of timber; but I insist that a young plantation of forest-trees may and should yield a clear income in every year after its fourth.

—But this paper grows too long, and I must postpone to the next my more especial suggestions to young farmers with regard to tree-planting.

McGUIRE'S
SPANISH HAR DRESSER
FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR,

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair-dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which we often see from the ornamentation of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S
Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion
For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances. This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headache.

McGUIRE'S
WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.
All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All these preparations are put up in the most elegant and ornamental manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and none complete without them. Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States and Canadas. Address orders to

GET THE BEST
READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture
GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peel off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

County rights for sale.
